

Nurturing our shared responsibility to build peaceful, just and inclusive institutions for the generations that will follow;

Article 4. Justice, Law and the Architecture of Peace: Peace Mediation is a pillar upon which the Rule of Law rests; as the Charter of the Commonwealth affirms, an effective legal system is one that engenders public confidence and dispenses justice accessibly, and mediation is among the surest means by which that confidence is earned. No mediated outcome may legitimise coercion or the surrender of human dignity. Building on the spirit of the Singapore Mediation Convention, we commit to carrying its confidence-building principles beyond commercial disputes into community, environmental, institutional and cross-border conflict, in service of UN Sustainable Development Goal 16.

Article 12. Emerging Frontiers of Peace Mediation: We recognise that the principles of this Declaration have further application - including in climate-related and environmental disputes, family and community mediation, restorative justice, commercial, workplace mediation and Artificial Intelligence - and commit to keeping this Declaration's implementation under review, developing further guidance in these areas as experience and consultation across the Commonwealth legal community may warrant.
